VINTAGE REPORT 2010

Winter 2010 proved to be quite stiff and rainy, with persistent rain continued throughout the Spring. The rigid temperatures of the first half of the year have also delayed the germination, which occurred only in the month of May. This was followed by hot summer months with very little rain.

The sudden change from the winter cold to summer heat affected the harvest period, postponing the beginning to mid September with the collection of Alicante and Merlot in Florence, and ending in mid-October, with the Cabernet Sauvignon and Petit Verdot of Panzano.
